

ALLIED SPECIAL OPERATIONS
JOINT OPERATIONS DESK

Ref. JOD / OH-01

Copy 1 of 1 · Destroy by fire

TO: 1st Lt. Jack Keene, U.S. Army
FROM: Joint Operations Desk
RE: OPERATION HINTERLAND
ROLE: Point / small-unit lead. You run the team.
PRIORITY: You are not being asked. You are being collected.

Lieutenant Keene,

After the last few months, HQ has a very short list of men who can walk four specialists into ugly country, keep them pointed the same way, and walk most of them back out again. Your name is at the top. Twice, in one clerk's case, which we are choosing to read as enthusiasm and not a filing error.

You are the team leader. Your job is to read the ground, call the approach, and hold four stubborn specialists together when the map and the mud start arguing. The others blow, listen, patch, and scout. You decide when. That is the whole advertisement.

You are hereby directed to report for briefing:

Forward Station CHARLIE-MILLS
Charlie-Mills-Strasse 3
Hamburg, Germany

DATE / TIME:

Attendance is mandatory. Heroics are optional until we say otherwise. Stubbornness will be tolerated; it usually is, in your case.

FOOD: Snacks will be provided on site.

DRINKS: Bring your own. The bar does not exist. This is not a negotiation.

Do not be late, Lieutenant. The other three are already being told you are in charge. Try to look like you knew that. If anyone asks who is hosting: you are. If anyone asks who is cooking: you are not. Those are different wars.

By order,

Col. W. Harrow
Joint Operations Desk

(who would like his evenings back)