TO: Sgt. Tomasz Krajewski
FROM: Joint Operations Desk
RE: OPERATION HINTERLAND
ROLE: Demolitions and field engineer. If it must stop working, that is you.
PRIORITY: Handle like explosives. Which is to say: carefully, and then all at once.

Sierżancie Krajewski,

Your work with explosives and field engineering these last months has made you inconveniently famous. Officers who cannot tell a primer from a paperweight keep asking for "the Pole who can drop a problem without dropping the building next to it." That is you. Congratulations. Condolences. Same envelope.

You are the demolitions man. Charges, wire, tools, improvisation: if a thing needs to be cut, rigged, or persuaded to become a hole in the ground, you are the one holding the kit. The lieutenant calls the noise. You make sure there is still a charge left when he does. Za Polskę — and for the three people who will be standing too close to your bag.

You will report to:

Forward Station CHARLIE-MILLS
Charlie-Mills-Strasse 3
Hamburg, Germany

DATE / TIME:

Leave the practical jokes at home. A whoopee cushion is funny. A satchel charge in the umbrella stand is a court martial with extra paperwork.

FOOD: Snacks will be provided. They are not fused. You may eat them without a countdown.

DRINKS: Bring your own. We supply courage of the dry variety only.

Do not bring extra surprises. The operation is surprise enough.

Respectfully,

Col. W. Harrow
Joint Operations Desk

P.S. If the doorbell sticks, knock. Do not improve it.
